D. Scott & Bro.'s New Card.

Our agricultural readers will please notice the new advertisement of that enterprising firm of D. Scott & Bro. The strict excellence of the fertilizers they manufacture, and the reliability of the firm, are two of the reasons why their business has increased so lately. Since last season they have doubled the capacity of their works, and they now have, both in location and character, one of the best manufactories in the country. Vessels bring the crude materials to the door of their mills, and carry to their customers the manufactured product. This cheap method of transportation enables them to give their customers the advantage of reduction in price of goods of the same standard quality, and which from the evidence to be seen on every hand, they are rapidly availing themselves of.

Death of Judge Thomas J. Sample.

A letter from New Albany, Ind., announces the death in that town on the 7th inst. of Judge T. J. Sample, a valued correspondent of The Whip and a native of this town, of paralysis, after an illness of five days. Judge Sample was born in this town on November 4, 1800, and removed west with his father in 1810. He has never since leaving returned to this place though he always manifested great interest in the welfare of the town of his birth. Judge Sample died as he had always lived, a strong, firm, trusting Christian. His death took place at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Kate F. Friedley, whose husband, the Rev. T. A. Friedley, is president of De Pauw College, a prominent institution of learning, in New Albany, Indiana.

Death of an Old Citizen.

Captain Edward Sturgeon died on Monday of consumption at his residence, No. 204 West Lombard street, Baltimore, aged 74 years. He was born at North East, in this county, but he went to Baltimore in early life and engaged in shipbuilding. He also followed the water himself, and was in command of the Canton, which carried passengers landed at Havre de Grace by the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad to Port Deposit. Afterwards he built the steamer Cecil and ran to Little Choptank and Passapatan rivers. He also built, in connection with Messrs. Murray & Haxlehurst the steamer Kent, now of the friends. The announcements, which are posted at Baden-Baden, are in German as translated read:

Mr. and Mrs. James Price announce approaching marriage of their daughter Miss Margaret Price to Edmund E. Wucherer von Huldendorf, Imp. roy. Chamberlain and First Lieutenant in the Artillery Regiment Leopold Prince of Bavaria, 7, attached to the Court of Her Imperial Highness Madame the Archduchess Elisabeth; son of the late Peter Baron Wucherer von Huldendorf, Imp. roy. Chamberlain and Counsellor, etc., and Bertha Baroness Wucherer von Huldendorf, born Countess Corinna de Monte Varchi. The wedding will take place in the month of July, 1882, at Baden-Baden.

"The demure but bright and pretty A street girl, Muggie Price, who but a year ago was tripping to school, is to be the Baroness Wucherer von Huldendorf. Miss Price is a granddaughter of Mr. Harlan of the famous shipbuilding firm Harlan & Hollingsworth, who each retired with great fortunes. When it is considered that in a census which has been taken some enterprising Parisian parties there are but 38 marriageable princes, in a whole of Europe and not over twice the number of barons in Germany the young lady has been particularly fortunate, as several hundred American girls on a foreign war path."

A COWARDLY AND DEADLY ASSAULT.

The Kennett Advance says: On Monday last George Hoopes, of this borough, and Charles H. Stilwell, who is said to hail from Elkton, were harvesting at the farm of Elizabeth Dixon, in Kennett township. At the dinner table Miss Mary Dixon complained that the men were not working; they ought and they became violent and abusive. After dinner they went to Hochessin, and in the meantime Miss Dixon, fearing some trouble, sent for her brother Evan Dixon. About the middle of the afternoon the two men returned to Dixon's both drunk. They were about to go into the house when Evan ordered them not to do so. They became abusive and Mr. Dixon ordered them to leave the place. They refused to go when Mr. Dixon caught hold of Hoopes and thrust him out, but on his still refusing to go he caught him again and running him up against the wall held him until he promised to leave. In the meantime Stilwell had grasped two stones and was advancing to attack Mr. Dixon, when his mother an aged woman, called his attention to his design, and her son then turned to Stilwell. While he was engaged with him Hoopes grasped a stone and sneaking up in the rear struck Mr. Dixon a violent blow on the back of the head which knocked him senseless. This surprising man has been
